Exposed timber rafters and crafted interior linings introduce a natural warmth embraced by the sculpted exterior form. Alongside the exposed timber rafters the Habitats House's cathedral ceilings rise to 3.4 metres which add generously to the feel of all the internal spaces.

Comfortably accommodating three or four-bedrooms, the floor plan affords a range of layouts. The two module design thoughtfully incorporates a full width open kitchen, dining, large glazed living spaces to create a plan that effortlessly opens up to the outdoors.

Celebrating a modernist aesthetic the Habitat House sits beautifully within a country or beach setting.
